Persuaded Mutant	Persuaded Machine	Persuaded Mutant	Wounded Human
These mutants have willingly given their bodies to the nanites, further twisting their already distorted visage.	Machines that have decided to join the nanite's collective. They often serve as scouts.	Some mutants will give up anything to go back to their normal lives. The nanites use this desire to their advantage.	Humans who through an open wound have had nanites invade their bodies. They now live in constant pain, aware of their actions, and unable to do anything.

Wounded Xenophage	Wounded Mutant	Wounded Machine	Wounded Machine
While Humans have a more familiar anatomy to nanite's this will not stop them from infecting aliens, so as to further bolster their forces.	Mutants suffer more damage in the infection process due to the wide variance in each of their own individual biologies.	Machines are almost half ripped apart in their infection process in order to better get at internal systems.	Sometimes clumps of nanites will congeal along the surface of a machine during infection. This slows the new threat, but provides more armor.

Fused Mech	Controlled Xeno	Consumed Mutant	Fused Mech
A pair of machines haphazardly fused together, with a great number of nanites acting as the glue.	An alien that has had its whole personality subsumed by the nanites within, allowing them greater command of the body.	A mutant whose bulbous flesh has been melted away over time from the nanites controlling it, granting it greater speed.	A machine that has had numerous other appliances and parts glued to its body from the nanites controlling it.

Confused Human	Confused Xenophage	Confused Mutant	Confused Mech
A human who has had a group of nanites attempt to infect him. Both he and the nanites are fighting for control.	Nanites will typically target an alien's HUD and other internal systems to make them attack friend and foe alike.	Nanites will often look for a more vulnerable spot on a mutant's body. Once they find what they are looking for they will agitate the area.	A machine whose systems are being hacked into by the nanites, sending it into a blind rage.

Nanite Hive	Nanite Hive	Nanite Hive	Nanite Hive
A spawning point for most of the nanite forces, they are completely dedicated to providing a never-ending tide of nanobots.	A hive that makes use of nuclear power to keep itself running and to ward off potential threats.	A large group of nanites who have focused on subsonic frequencies in order to better fight against human enemies and eventually topple their society.	A conglomeration of nanites that focusses on the defense of the whole. The multitude of lasers at their disposal helps to fend off attacks on their thicker exterior.

Nanite Hive	Controlled Xeno	Consumed Xeno	Fused Xeno
A horde of nanites that have managed to study the effects of EMP technology. This has left them brittle and weak, but extremely powerful.	An alien that for all intents and purposes seems perfectly fine on the exterior but in reality is a nanite infiltrator.	An alien whose nanites have used most of its blood to act as a coolant to the weapons now fused to its body, draining it over time.	A fully controlled alien who has had its equipment fused to its skin, providing another layer of defense.
